

INTRODUCTION: DEATH ITSELF

What is Death in reference to this book? Death will mean the literal spirit holding each dead person in the death phase. There are stories and drawings of Death, known by society as the Grim Reaper, who looks like a skeleton in a dark cloak, carrying a sickle.

To be more accurate, Death literally is a spirit, gray mist-looking, with a spiritual agreement with Yahweh due to what took way in the garden of Eden and has governing authority to hold all the dead in a state of non-movement unless an "entity" breaks the dead person free to live again.

Now, why would we state it in that way as an entity and not specify Yahweh? Why wouldn't Yahweh use an angel under Kingdom order? Due to what really leads in Death, the spirit, we can see that Death is under Satan's way yet used by Yahweh to move in keeping all who are dead in a contained state.

Take a look at Death, a governing spirit, and the state of death, referred to as the Death Phase. Death Phase refers to a state of natural death, where the spirit part of the human has been released from the human body and takes the place of location in Heaven or Hell.

The state of being in death is not what Yahweh willed into eternity due to how Christians are to live forever with Him. The current state known as death (not referring to the second death in the lake of fire) will not exist into eternity.

What if Yahweh brings that person back to life? How would anyone know for sure that the newly raised person is the one who was once under a demon spirit known as Death? What level of power can take hold of a person's spirit and remove that person from Heaven or the Hell to bring them under creative miracles, placing natural blood where chemicals fill that space?

In this book, a prophet learns that Yahweh plans to raise the buried dead even before the noted resurrections, as mentioned in the Book of Revelation. What if there is a faith level that can stand within the human to believe in God's promise that He will return and raise the dead? But if Yahweh can perform this feat, would His power level be great enough to bring forward examples in our lifetime?

This servant trusts God to heal the sick and make people feel better, but what if He asks for more? What if Yahweh says that you show your faith by obeying what He says? What if King Jesus says to declare that certain people will rise from the dead before the given main resurrections?

In this short manual of experiential training, Yahweh trains a student with lessons that show her that the plan to raise buried dead people can happen with His great surging of power and covenant.
