

LYING SPIRIT

SEERSGATE SAYS:

I know that many will surely say they know about that demon that would take a plan to rule over many through lying, but what most truly do not know is that the root for the lying way has a different way. Those who would lie have a way to walk in an open-wounded way—to give the impression that there is no real need to give the truth.

Liars lie so they would be truly seen with a different perspective—whether to help others move in being seen poorly or to have a plan to be seen truly in a false way. Liars have a nature that is moving as Satan's nature. Their way would be the exact opposite of the Great King, who is Truth. Liars will also change the Scriptures to have them reflect ways to help them prove their way. Liars also want to even change their future by giving false details to get certain jobs or certain financial gain. Some would cheat government organizations.

Some would cheat their employees. Some would cheat their work schedules and would lie about their workday. Some would cheat in their service to the Great Way, and to look good to church leaders, they would pretend to do works—to give them a new way to be seen in higher spiritual ways.

Lying goes against God's plan for real ways in outreach and would take away a trust level, and in some ways, may not have a way to be given again. Lying spirits come and make a person live a false plan where they would pretend that all is truly well. Then other lying spirits would have leaders beg for money to fund their personal needs under a false cry for help. The lying spirit will be stronger within those who have a base of manipulation. When you need to turn after others and shape them into what you want them to be, your way truly is being led with a web that has a lying spirit, with a way to manipulate. Hurt and pain, with deep-wounded ways, have a real placement in those who are liars. Within the liar, there is something within that makes that person want to be a people-pleaser, whether it's to lead over the person hearing it or over your soul.
